1. Introduction

Transparency is one of the main factors that affects the increase of accountability and as a result also increases the performance of public administration. The current system of public consultation established in 2016 at the current level has entered a normal phase of the policy-making and legislative process in the Government of the Republic of Kosovo. Therefore, the fulfilment of standards set by the Regulation on Minimum Standards of the Public Consultation Process has now become part of the institutions' work.

The monitoring of implementation has also become part of the Prime Minister's Office and Ministries. Monitoring the implementation and advancing the consultation process has become part of the Government Strategy for cooperation with Civil Society, as part of the European Commission's assessment through an agreement between the Government and the European Commission on budget support.

In addition to extending the central level of the Government, the public consultation system has been extended to all municipalities both in terms of regulation and the creation of means and conditions for its implementation. But it should be noted that the municipal level is not part of the scope of this report.

It is estimated that also in 2019 progress in fulfilling the minimum standards of public consultation has shown positive trends despite challenges, especially those caused by factors that do not fall within the scope of public consultation, especially given the limited functioning of the Government due to its resignation in August 2019.

During 2019 the fulfilment of the consultation standards the following results were achieved:

- Increase the percentage of drafted documents that have undergone the consultation process up to 100%.
- Increase in the number of documents consulted in 2019 to 276 from 228 ones in 2018.
- Increased level of fulfilment the standards of the consultation process by 61% in 2019.
- Increasing the degree of meeting the standards of the consultation process to 82% for SBS standards and under 67% for all documents in 2019.
- The number of participants in the public consultation process has increased more than doubled compared to 2018.
- The survey conducted with the coordinators of public consultations in the ministry during the drafting of this report revealed that most of the ministries are satisfied with the process of public consultations. The survey also shows that the consultation process has had positive effects, especially on transparency and accountability, informing stakeholders about the drafting process and the content of policies and legislation drafted by ministries, and giving stakeholders the opportunity to contribute.

- Strengthened co-operation with coordinators on minimum standards from ministries, with offices within the Office of the Prime Minister and other responsible officials for conducting public consultations.
- In addition to holding trainings and workshops with public consultation coordinators, on-the-job trainings have also been held in selected ministries to ensure the participation of other ministry structures, particularly policy-making departments.
- The electronic platform for public consultations has been upgraded where some categories of statistics can now be automatically generated by the platform administrators and the platform has been embeded with a module to include the consultations in municipal level.
- Continued cooperation with civil society organizations and stakeholders to increase their interest to contribute to the qualitative consultations.

2. Executive Summary

Following the adoption of Regulation No.05 / 2016 on minimum standards for public consultation process (hereinafter the Regulation)¹ this is the third annual report presenting the progress of this process. The report presents the work done during 2019 on the implementation of minimum standards for the Government consultation process led by the Office of the Prime Minister / Office for Good Governance, in cooperation with all other institutions involved in the process of developing policies and legislation.

The report provides details and statistics on meeting all standards since the drafting or initiation of the consultation process, drafting the consultation document, the use of consultation methods, including the platform, public participation in providing their contributions, status of comments etc. Separate information has been provided on the extent to which level the certain standards have been met with the indicator on Budget Support subject to the Agreement between the Government and the European Commission.

The report sets out in detail the following categories of information:

- Total number of documents drafted and consulted - During 2019, a total of 274 documents are reported to have been drafted by all ministries which according to minimum standards, they should be subject to the public consultation process. Of this total, 100% or all of these documents have been subject to public consultation. 274 documents (272 through the online platform and 2 documents consulted offline) 15 concept documents, 31 draft laws, 77 draft regulations, 129 draft administrative orders, 6 strategies, 5 programs, 7 action plans and 8 other documents. All ministries (except MCR) have drafted and consulted public documents.
- Completion of Standards - It is estimated that 183 documents or 67% of the consulted documents have met the minimum standards as anticipated by the regulations while 91 or 33% of them have not met these standards.
- Meeting the criteria of the SBS indicator - Within the framework of the conditions of the SBS indicator during 2019, a total of 57 documents were consulted. The evaluation is done for the documents that were consulted during the time before the resignation of the Prime Minister on July 19 where the completion rate is 51% (taking into account the Government's decisions on consulted documents) and the second category which includes all documents consulted during 2019 that meet SBS indicator. The percentage of realization of this category reaches the level of 82% (without including the decisions of the Government for the consulted documents).

- Participation in the consultation process and comments - It was reported that 3577 participants participated in the public consultation process who gave 1339 comments either through meetings, working groups or even in writing. It is estimated that 688 or 61% of them were accepted by the drafting institutions, 97 or 7.2% of them were partially accepted, 543 comments or 4.50% were rejected, while for 6 comments there is no information whether they were accepted or rejected.
- Methods of consultation used - All documents consulted during 2019 have been published on the online platform. In addition to publishing on the platform, 103 documents (or 37% of the total number of documents consulted) were also consulted through workshops, while 99 documents or 36% were consulted by e-mail. In addition, 35 documents or 12.6% were also consulted through public meetings, 24 documents or 8.6% were consulted through face-to-face meetings and 21 documents or 7.6% were consulted through stakeholder meetings.
- Challenges and recommendations - In addition to the assessments and experiences of the Office of the Prime Minister, experiences on challenges and recommendations have also been presented to public consultation coordinators in the ministry through a survey conducted with them during the drafting of this report. In addition to the challenges, the report in the final section also presents recommendations that should be taken in the future to improve the consultation process and its quality.

3. The reporting and monitoring methodology for implementation of standards

The annual reporting is done according to the reporting methodology developed and adopted in 2017. There are several sources of information for the compilation of this report.

- Information sent by the public consultation coordinators from each ministry and office of the Prime Minister.

- Information published and generated by the online platform for public consultations.

- information deriving from the activities of the Office of Good Governance and projects that support the Government in developing and advancing public consultation, in particular the European Commission project “Support to the Implementation of the Strategy for Cooperation between the Government and Civil Society”.

The OGG / OPM request to ministries for reporting dated 22 January 2020 was preceded by a one-day workshop held with coordinators for public consultations from line ministries on 21st January 2020.

Reporting by the coordinators is done through forms designed to collect information for drafting the annual report according to the Regulation and Monitoring & Reporting Methodology for the implementation of the minimum standards adopted by the OPM in 2017.

The OGG request for reports was responded to by all other ministries except MLSW, MCYS, MIN, MoD, MFA while the MCR did not draft any document as subject to be consulted. For those ministries that did not respond to the request for reporting, we were based on the information available on the online platform, the documents consulted by those ministries.

The European Commission Project “Support for the Implementation of the Strategy for Cooperation between Government and Civil Society” has also provided support in drafting or collecting contributions for the Report. On-the-spot sessions have been held with the Ministry of Education Science and Technology, the Ministry of Public Administration, Ministry of Agriculture, Forestry and Rural Development and Ministry of Justice.

Also, since some of the information reported by the ministries were not matching with those found on the online platform including the above-mentioned ministries that did not report at all, additional information was obtained from the online platform for public consultations.

The evaluation criteria under the Minimum Standards Regulation are:

- Each consulted document should have a consultation plan.
- The consultation document together with the main document to be consulted should be published on the online platform for public consultations.
- The consultation period should be at least 15 working days.
- The consultation report should be published on the platform for each document consulted.
- The main consultation document should be published after the inclusion of comments and suggestions.

In order to provide the qualitative dimension in the annual report on public consultations held in 2019, a survey was also conducted with coordinators of public consultations. The information provided by the survey is included in the annual report on public consultation in a complementary manner and within the existing structure of the annual report drafted according to the reporting methodology. The focus of the questionnaire was the public consultation coordinators from the ministries and the Office of the Prime Minister. Out of a total of 21 Ministries and the Office of the Prime Minister, 14 questionnaires were completed by the Ministries and the Office of the Prime Minister who participated in a workshop organized on 21st January 2020 with the Public Consultation Coordinators.

For the purpose of assessment of indicators under the SBS contract only concept papers, draft laws and strategic documents are included, as opposed to the overall evaluation of standards according to the regulation including bylaws and other documents. Also, unlike the overall assessment, for achieving the SBS indicator, the assessment will only need to include documents for which the government has made decisions by the time this report is drafted. But the adoption of the documents by the Government as a criterion of SBS indicator in this report has not been calculated because the acting Government since August when it resigned, it had no responsibility for the adoption of primary legislation.

4. The online platform for public consultations

During 2019 it was worked with the online platform in two following directions:

1. Improving the technical defects encountered during its use by other institutions and users, and
2. In expanding the platform with new elements that never existed before.

Due to the construction of a public consultation system at the local level and to accommodate the requirements for involving municipalities in the consultation process, new modules for each municipality were added to the platform in 2019, and a statistics generation system was built for the local level.

Concerning the perception and evaluation by the coordinators for the functioning of the Electronic Platform, in the survey conducted with the coordinators on the question "What do you want to change in the operation of the electronic platform?" the answers were given as follows:

- Not to allow changing the starting date for public consultations.
- Increase the capacity and accuracy of receiving documents
- The system to be faster and more functional as in most cases it is impossible to publish.
- Designate permanent structure of the platform.

Majority of respondents to this question expressed satisfaction with the operation of the platform.

5. Cooperation and capacity building for public consultations

During 2019, cooperation with ministries and civil society has continued regarding the progress and improvement of the public consultation process.

Ministries have been provided with ongoing support by the Office of Good Governance through daily information, responses and clarifications as requested by ministries. With the support of the European Commission Project, on-the-job training has been provided to the Ministry of Agriculture, Forestry and Rural Development. The on-the-job training session for this ministry was delivered on 26th November 2019 and was attended by 13 participants from management and staff of the Ministry.

In addition to supporting consulting development, ministries have been provided with support in drafting or collecting contributions for the drafting of the Annual Consultation Report for 2019. Senacs have been held with the Ministry of Education Science, Technology, the Ministry of Public Administration and the Ministry of Agriculture and Forestry. and Rural Development, while support is also provided to the Ministry of Justice.

In addition to supporting the consultations, ministries have been supported in drafting or collecting contributions for preparing the Annual Consultation Report for 2019. The sessions were held with the Ministry of Education Science and Technology, Ministry of Public Administration and Ministry of Agriculture, Forestry and Rural Development as well as to the Ministry of Justice.

Following these needs and based on the success of previous training activities, as well as lessons learned from the implementation of minimum standards for public consultation in recent years, the Office of the Prime Minister / OGG, in cooperation with the Kosovo Institute for Public Administration and supported by the EU project "Support to the Implementation of the Government Strategy for Cooperation with Civil Society" have planned to provide a Training Program for Trainers (ToT), a program aimed at creating a training group that will be able to provide training on public consultations for the Institutions in the future. This will ensure the sustainability of capacity building activities undertaken over the past years with the support of the EU technical assistance project. Furthermore, the implementation of the ToT program will provide additional impetus to the fulfillment of indicators for Public Sector Budget Assistance for public administration in Kosovo. During 2019, all preparations were made to finalize the training for Trainers process, such as drafting the training program, preparing the public call, finalizing the public call and publishing it. The candidates selection process has been completed and the training is expected to take place during March 2020.

The Office for Good Governance, in the framework of the Monitoring of the Strategy for Cooperation between the Government and the Civil Society, held regular meetings where the topic of discussion was the process of public consultation and civil society participation in the policy-making process.

However, the need for increased cooperation and support for ministries in capacity building for the public consultation process is still high. The demand for better training and cooperation was also expressed by the coordinators through the survey conducted with them during January 2020. On the question "What capacities / skills do you need to further enhance in your institution?" the coordinators' responses are as follows:

- Training and professional assistance was requested from 6 (or 60%) of the 10 responses received from respondents to this question.
- Supported the coordination and provision of information.
- Budget support for public meetings,
- Support in drafting the consultation plan, etc.

Similar answers were also given to the question "What kind of support do you need from the central level / Office of the Prime Minister?" where in addition to the required support it is also required to put pressure on the hierarchy to comply with the regulation on minimum standards for the public consultation process but also to help avoid uncertainties about the public consultation process.

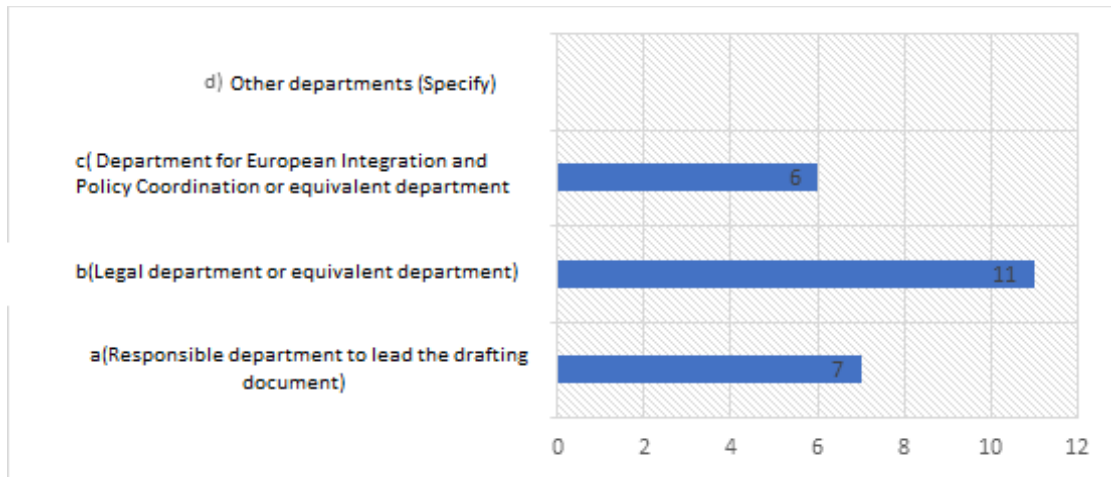

6. Coordination and maintaining the process of consultation within institutions

Internal coordination and cooperation within the ministries and the Office of the Prime Minister is seen as one of the main challenges in terms of the smooth running of the public consultation process.

Concerns about the lack of inter-institutional coordination have been consistently expressed by the coordinators. This concern was also expressed in the survey responses to the question "What are the main challenges that your ministry faces in conducting public consultations?". Respondents also pointed out that there is low support from ministries and lack of coordination to conduct consultations as well as difficulties in obtaining the consultation document and final report from those who draft the initiatives.

Difficulties in coordinating and directly involving the departments responsible for policy making and drafting documents were also highlighted by the answers to the question "Which departments are involved in conducting public consultations?"

As seen in the responses from coordinators, in only 7% or 50 responses included the responsible department for policy in the consultation process of the relevant document. (figure 1). While in most cases contributors to the consultation process are the Legal Departments and the Departments for European Integration and Policy Coordination.

7. Total number of draft documents

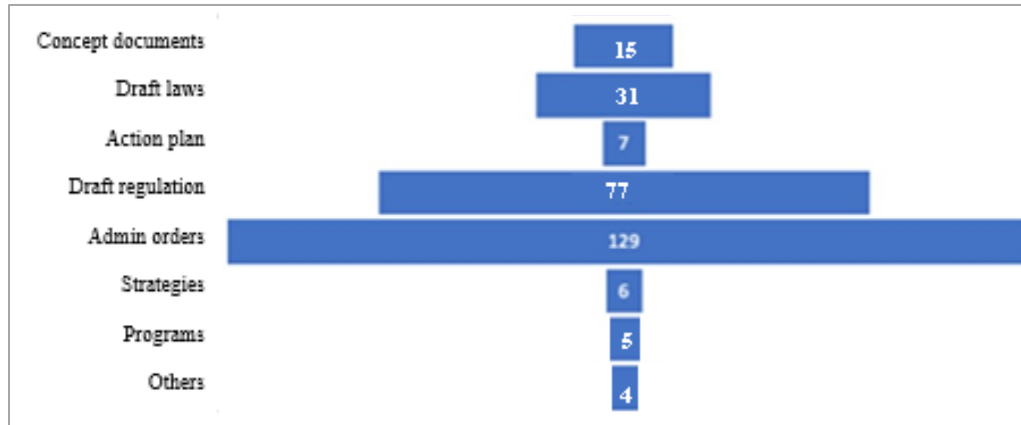

During the period January-December 2019, the Government of the Republic of Kosovo finalized the consultation for 274 documents that fall into the category of documents that according to the Regulation, their compilers are obliged to consult with the public.

Out of these documents, 272 ones have been published on the consultation platform and two documents have been consulted only through other consultation methods. Compared to the previous year (2018) during 2019 18% more documents were consulted.

Most of the documents that were drafted during 2019 belong to the category of by-laws, led by draft administrative instructions (129 administrative instructions) then draft regulations (77 draft regulations in total) and 31 draft laws, then 15 concept documents, 6 strategies, 5 programs, 7 action plans, and 4 other documents went through the public consultation process (Figure 5).

8. Level of fulfillment of minimum standards

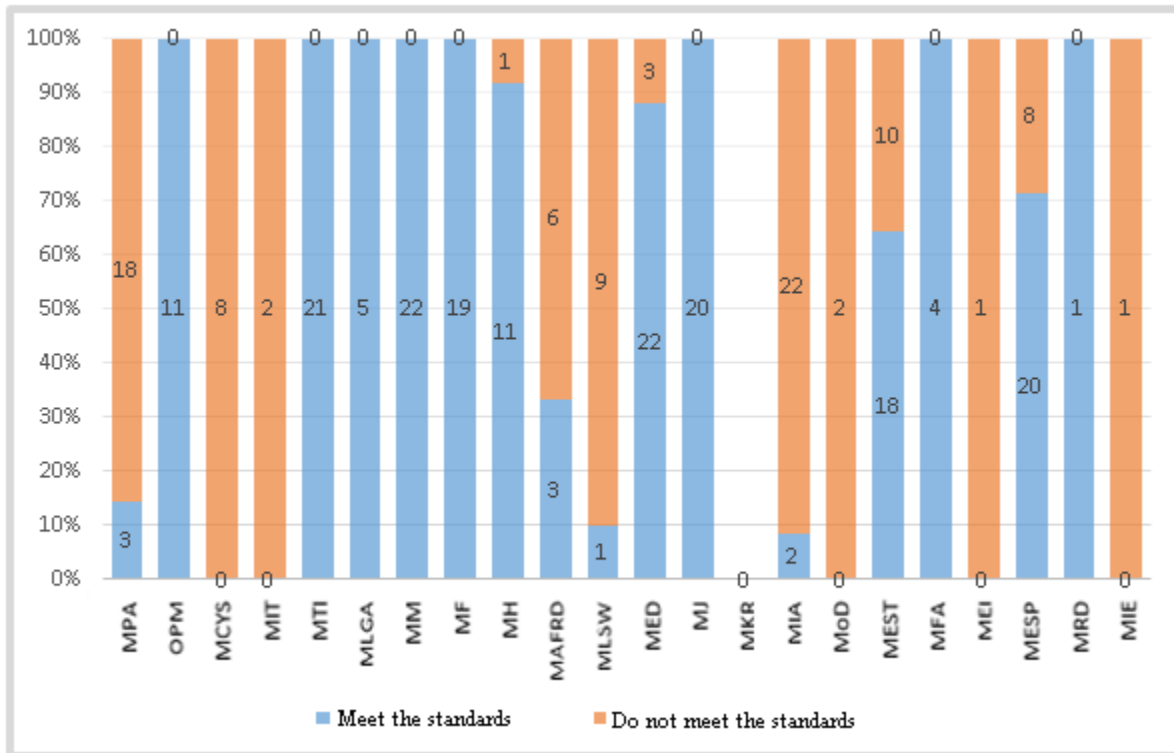

The number of documents that have undergone public consultation is 100%. Completion of minimum standards of public consultation process expressed as a percentage during 2019 is 67%. The degree of fulfillment of the minimum standards presented in this report is based on the information provided by the coordinators but also from the electronic platform for public consultation. It is estimated that out of the total number of consulted documents (274 documents), the minimum standards set by the regulation have met in total 183 or 67% of documents, while the number of documents that have not met all minimum standards is 91 ones or 33% (figure 6). Among the standards that are not met in most of the documents is the lack of publication of the consultation final report. Also, many documents are not attached with the consultation document or do not respect the 15-day consultation period as explicitly required by the regulation.

- The ministries that have fully met the standards are: MD with 22 documents, MF with 19 consulted documents, MFA with 4 documents, MJ with 20 documents, MTI with 21 documents, OPM with 11 consulted documents, MLGA with 5 documents, MRD with only 1 document (figure 7).
- Ministries that have met the standards above 75%: MED from 25 documents only with 2 did not meet the standards, then the MoH from 12 documents only one document did not meet the standards.
- Ministries that have met the standards between 50-75% are: MESP from 28 documents, 20 have met the standards while 8 didn't, while MEST from 28 documents, 10 documents have not met the standards.
- Ministries that have met the standards below 50% are: MPA from 21 documents only 3 have met the standards, MLSW out of 10 documents only 1 meets the standards, MAFRD out of 9 documents, with 3 documents meet the standards, MIA with 24 documents, of which 2 meet the standards.
- Ministries that do not meet any documents do not meet all standards: MCYS with 8 documents, Ministry of Infrastructure and Transport with 2 documents, MoD with 2 documents. MEI and MIN each with 1 document consulted during 2019 (see figure 7 below).

9. Filling criteria for SBS Indicator

In addition to reporting on the implementation of the regulation on minimum standards, the Office of Good Governance monitors the implementation of minimum standards aimed at measuring Indicator II “Effective Public Communication, Public Consultation and Stakeholder Participation” under the Direct Budget Support Agreement (SBS).) under IPA 2 which the agreement provides 25 million euros budget support for Kosovo. The SBS Public Consultation Indicator during 2019 aims to consult at least 70% of draft strategies / sector policies / concept documents and primary laws, which have been approved by the government in 2019, in accordance with established standards, and for 2020 the standards should be met at rate of 100%.

The responsible offices in the Prime Minister’s Office / Legal Office, the Strategic Planning office and the Government Coordination Secretariat ensure that public consultation requirements are implemented in accordance with the regulation. All three offices report on consultations on strategies, concept documents and laws. This information is shared directly with the EU and the OGG for reporting purposes.

Due to the situation created after the resignation of the Prime Minister on July 19, 2019 the Office for Good Governance evaluates the consulted documents according to two categories of criteria:

1. In the first category, there are the documents which fall into the assessment that fulfil all standards set by SBS agreement. This group includes all the documents which have been closed for consultation between January 1, 2019 and July 19, 2019. This includes also some of the later completed documents and which have been approved by the Government.²

Total	18	17	35

According to the table above, a total of 9 concept documents have been consulted during this period (all of which meet the standards); 15 draft laws (4 of which have met the standards); 6 strategies (1 of which met the standards) and 5 programs (4 of which also meet the standards). A total of 35 documents that fall into this category, 18 of them or 51% have met the standards while 17 or 49% of them have not met the standards (see Table 1 and Figure 1).

2. The second group of documents which fall into the assessment of all documents for which consultation has been closed from 1 January to 31 December 2019. For these documents, the criterion of their approval by the Government shall not be calculated.

In the framework of the SBS Indicator Conditions, a total of 57 documents were consulted during 2019.

According to Table 2 as above, a total of 15 concept documents were consulted during this period (12 of which meet the standards); 31 draft laws (25 of which meet the standards); 6 strategies (5 of which meet the standards) and 5 programs (of which 5 meet the standards). A total of 57 documents that fall into this category 47 of them or 82% have met the standards while 10 or 18% of them have not met the standards (see Table 2 and Figure 3).

10. Methods used during the consultation process

According to the information reported by the Ministries and from the Office of the Prime Minister and those extracted from the Public Consultation Platform all the documents consulted during 2019 have been published on the online platform. In addition to publishing on the platform, 103 documents (or 37% of the total number of documents consulted) were also consulted through workshops, while 99 documents or 36% were consulted by e-mail. In addition, 35 documents or 12.6% were also consulted through public meetings, 24 documents or 8.6% were consulted through face-to-face meetings and 21 documents or 7.6% were consulted through stakeholder meetings. Other methods such as conferences, opinion polls, etc. were not used or the ministries did not report that they were used (table no. 2).

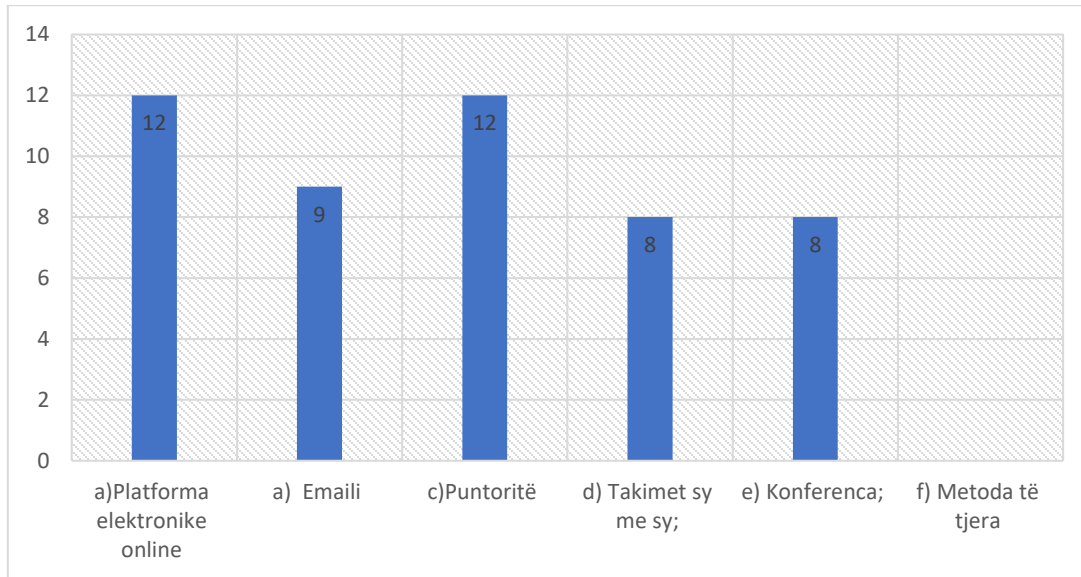

The institutions that have used the most methods of consultations are MTI and MEST-MJ which in addition to publishing on the online platform, they have also used written consultation, public meetings, face-to-face meetings with stakeholders, and workshops. Also different consultation methods besides publishing on the online platform have been used by OPM, used 4 methods, MLGA and MAFRD with 3 consultation methods, two consultation methods have been used by MF, MPA, MH, MIA, and MESP, MED, whereas other ministries used only one method, namely the online consultation platform (Table 2).

Most of the consultation methods reported through the forms are also presented through the response to the survey conducted with the coordinators. The question "Which consultation methods do you find most useful?", their answer is that the online platform is used by 12 out of 14 respondents, email is used by 9, workshops by 12 respondents, face-to-face meetings by 8 respondents and conferences by 8 respondents (see Figure 7).

However, conferencing as a method of consultation does not appear in the reports from the ministries, a method that is noted to have been used by 8 respondents out of 14 in total (or 57% of respondents), as shown in Figure 7.

11. Level of public participation in the consultation process

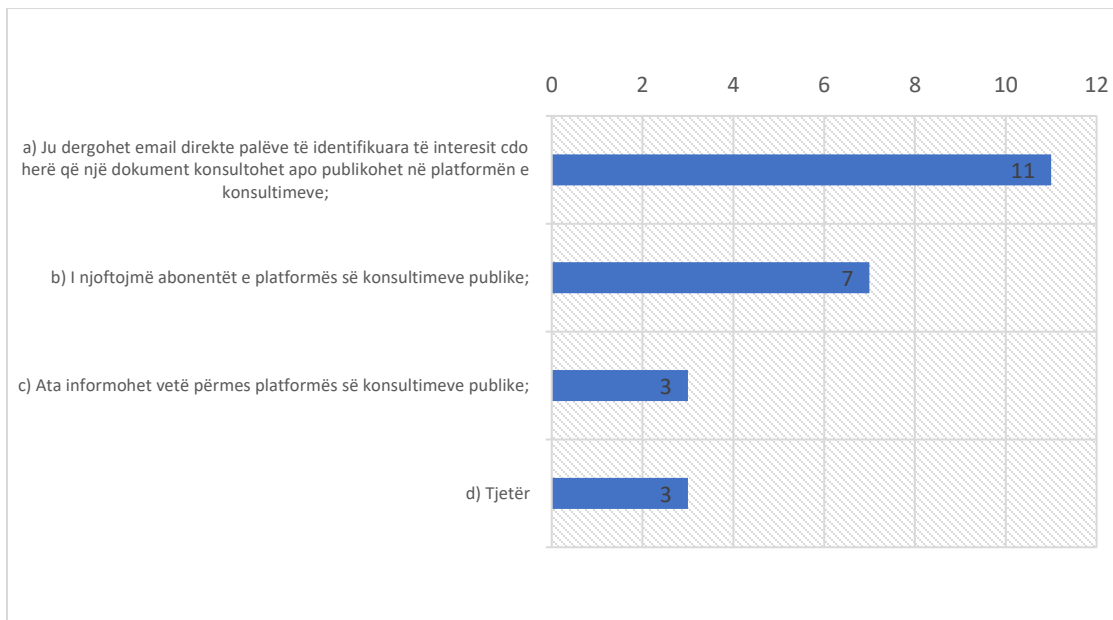

The level of public participation in the public consultation process has increased substantially compared to the previous year. During 2019 a total of 3577 participants were reported to have participated in the consultation process. This represents an increase of 143% compared to the previous year, when 1469 participants were reported to have been consulted. Although the number of participants has increased, the rate of contribution or comment during 2019 has decreased by 30% compared to the previous year (from 1930 in 2018 to 1339 in 2019).

The manner of informing the publication of documents and approach to stakeholders especially during the consultation process is important and affects the quality of contributions and the number of comments.

On the question, "How do you inform stakeholders about the consultations being opened by your ministry?" as part of the survey with coordinators, most or 11 out of 14 respondents stated that the parties were informed by email for the documents published on the online platform or used the consultation with the public, while 7 of the respondents stated that subscribers were informed automatically through the online platform, 3 of the respondents stated that the parties themselves are informed directly by the online platform, while the other 3 state that they informed the parties either by phone, conferences or meetings (see figure 8).

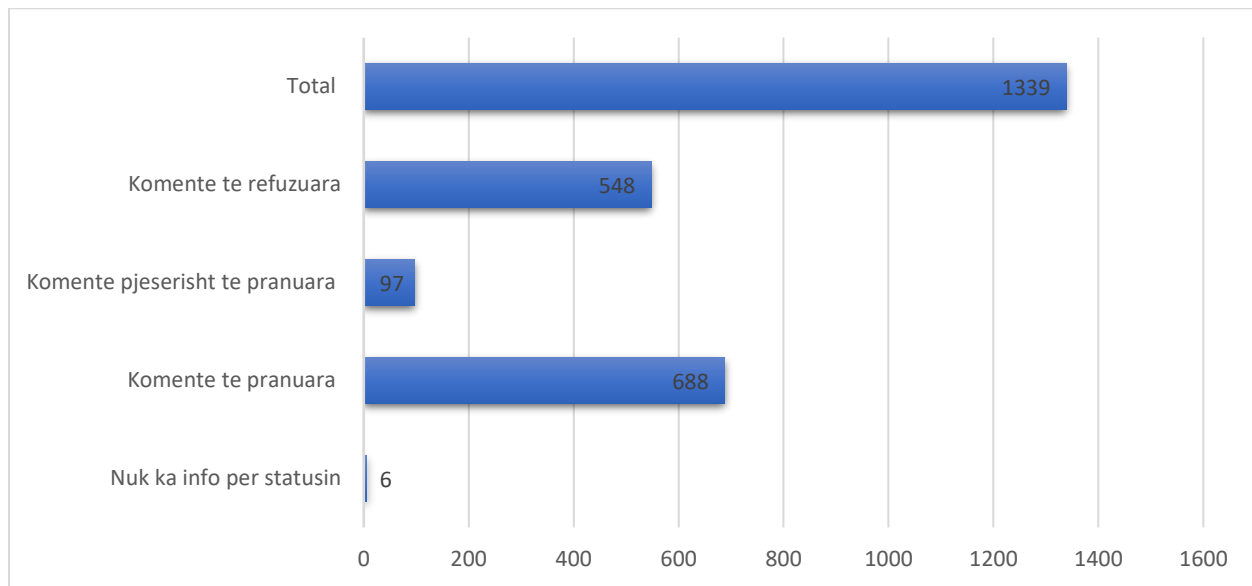

Figure 5: How do you inform stakeholders about the consultations being opened by your ministry?

12. Number and status of comments

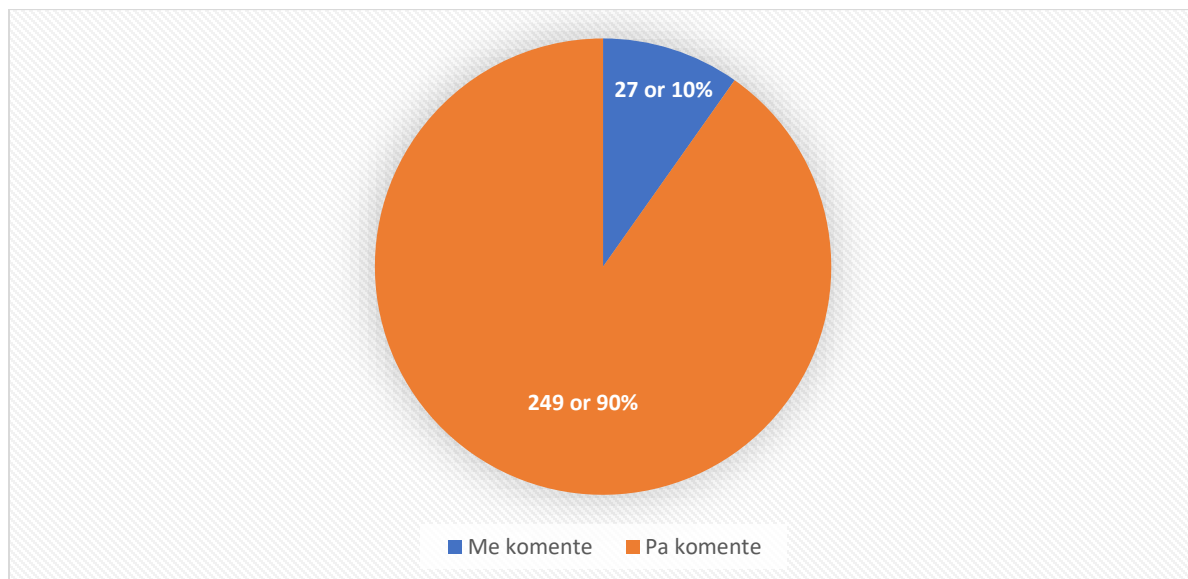

During the year 2019, out of 276 documents that went through the consultation process, the total number of comments received was 1339. Regarding the status of comments, it is estimated that 688 or 61% of them received by the drafting institutions were accepted, 97 or 7.2% of them were partially accepted while 543 comments or 4.50% were rejected, while for 6 comments there is no information whether they were accepted or rejected (see figure 9).

According to the number of documents only 27 or 10% of the documents published on the platform received comments while 249 or 90% of the documents did not receive any comments on the online platform (figure 10).

The online platform for public consultation in the current version can generate only the number of commenters and the number of documents that have been commented but not the number of comments. Many of the comments on the platform are provided through attached documents which could contain a greater number of comments than those automatically generated in the statistics section. Another problem encountered during the drafting of this report is the inability to separate the number of comments provided through the platform and those offered by other methods, because such information was not provided through the final reports published on the online platform. The number of comments calculated in this report is based on the official information provided by the coordinators for public consultation in the line ministries (figure 11).

The following graph shows the comparative information by ministries on the number of documents consulted, the number of participants and the number of comments. It is worth noting that according to the data, the public participation in the consultation process varies from ministry to ministry. The participation statistics, the number of documents consulted and the number of comments are in most cases disproportional (Fig. 12).

13. Comparative statistics between 2017, 2018 and 2019

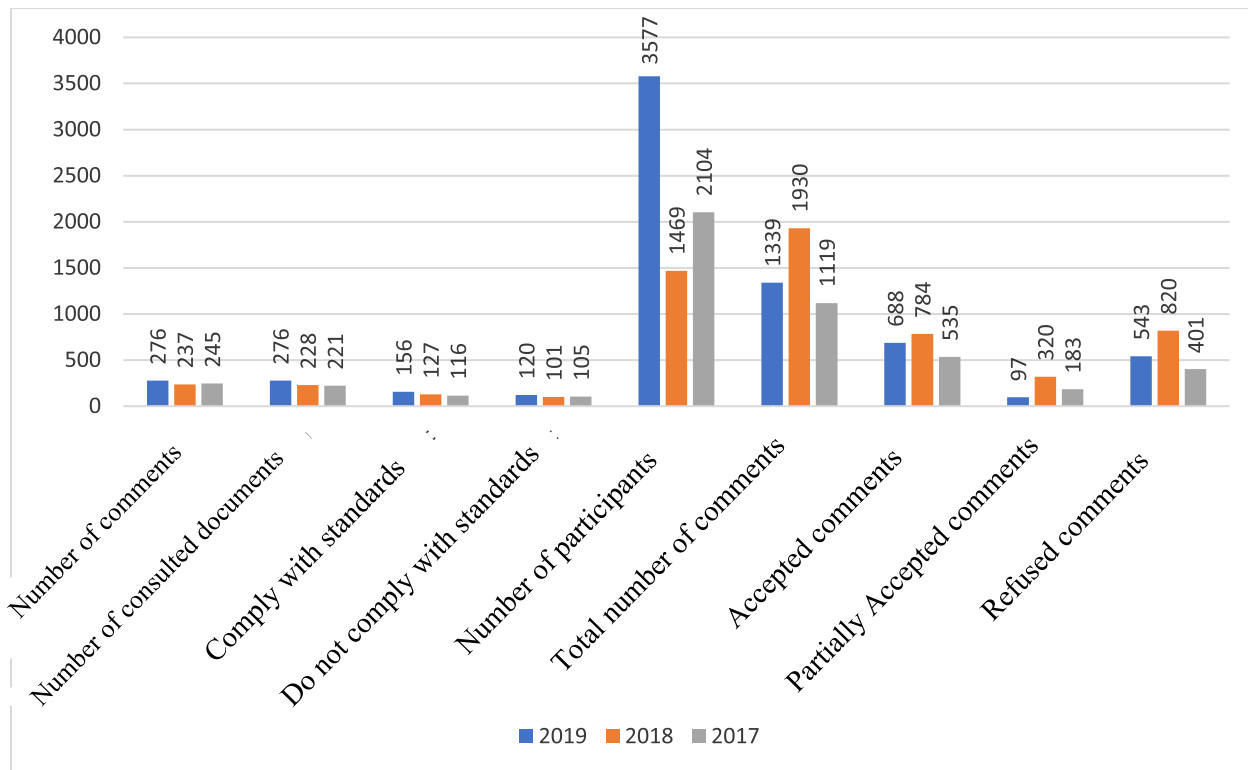

The volume of activities from ministries on the consultation process during 2019 is not much different from the previous year. The main goal during 2019 has been to include all documents in the consultation process, to increase the number of documents that fulfil the standards and to improve the quality of consultations.

Involvement of documents in consultations - The upward trend in the number of consulted documents in 2019 is positive compared to previous years. The total number of documents consulted during 2019 is 21% higher or 48 more documents than in 2018, while 25% or 55 more documents than in 2017 (Year 2017: 221, year 2018: 228 documents, year 2019: 276 documents). It should also be noted that during 2019 we do not have any document that did not go through the consultation process.

The level of fulfillment the standards- compared to the previous year in 2019, the fulfillment level has increased by only 1% compared to year 2018. In figures the number of documents that met the standards during 2019 was 156, during the year the number was 127 while in year 2017 the number of documents that met the standards was 116.

During 2019 standards did not meet 120 consulted documents, during 2018, standards did not meet 101 documents while in 2017, 105 documents did not meet standards.

The consultation quality – Even this year, the methodology used for the compilation of this report and the resources allocated do not provide the opportunity to make a qualitative assessment of the fulfillment of standards. However, according to the information provided through reporting, and those published, we can set out some good examples of documents that went through a consultation process during 2019. The Draft Law on Inspections can be set as a good example whose consultation process was done accordingly, both in terms of the use of consultation methods, comments received, quality of published documents, etc. An example to be mentioned is also the draft Civil Code of Kosovo which has met the consultation standards and can also be taken as a good example from a qualitative point of view. Then the Draft Administrative Instruction no. 02/2019 on the Organization, Functioning and Cooperation of Municipalities with Villages, Settlements and Urban Neighborhoods drafted by MLGA, followed by the draft Law on Social Housing drafted by MESP. Here, we have selected few examples although good practices of meeting the minimum standards were noted by other ministries, too.

The survey with the public consultation coordinators was conducted in January 2020, which aims to provide a qualitative dimension to the information presented in this report regarding the fulfilment of the standards. The survey reveals the following:

- The survey found that most ministries are satisfied with the public consultation process. The survey also found that the consultation process had positive effects, especially on transparency and accountability, informing stakeholders on the drafting process and the content of policies and legislation drafted by the ministries, as well as enabling stakeholders to provide their inputs.
- Respondents also mentioned a number of challenges, notably the lack of stakeholders to provide comments, lack of coordination of the consultation process within institutions to complete the consultation process.
- The survey reveals that the largest involvement in the consultation process is from the Legal Department, and DEIPC, and to some extent the department responsible for leading the drafting of the document, but not in all cases.
- Most ministries have expressed the need for training and professional assistance, while others have expressed greater coordination and outreach. It has also been required to put pressure on the hierarchy to comply with the regulation on minimum standards for the public consultation process.
- In general, coordinators consider that the Regulation on minimum standards does not need to be amended. But many respondents have demanded its harmonization with the Government's Rules of Procedure. But in this respect the answers have been general without specifying the provisions to be harmonized.

14. Conclusions and challenges

In 2019, despite the resignation of the Government and its incomplete functioning, the number of documents drafted and consulted is much higher than the previous year i.e. from 228 during 2018, the number of documents consulted has increased to 276 in 2019. It is also worth noting that all or 100% of the documents consulted went through the consultation platform unlike 2018 when 96% of the documents consulted went through the platform.

Among the challenges faced during 2019 besides the assessment by the central level of government, challenges are also raised by the coordinators through the survey conducted with them:

- The level of compliance with standards, although increasing, is still a challenge, and especially the drafting and publication of the consultation report is one of the factors that is not followed up well by many ministries.
- Replacement of coordinators has been also a challenge during 2019.
- Coordinators through the survey have mentioned a number of challenges, notably the lack of stakeholders to provide comments, lack of coordination of the consultation process within institutions to complete the consultation process.
- Consultations are not always conducted by the departments responsible for drafting the relevant documents but by Legal Departments or DEIPCs.
- Increasing the number of stakeholder comments in the consultation process is a challenge. This can be done inter alia by using methods other than the electronic platform for public consultation.
- Further upgrade of the online platform for generating information, participation and comments provided also outside the online platform.
- The information provided by the coordinators during the reporting process often does not match what is generated on the platform. In addition, those information sent are incomplete.

Steps to be undertaken for this purpose are as follows:

- Offices within the Prime Minister's Office (LO, GCS and SPO) should take the responsibility they have with the regulation on minimum standards to not allowing the approval in the Government if the documents do not meet the minimum standards.
- The process of public consultation, challenges and problems should be discussed more frequently at the meetings of the General Secretaries that are held on a weekly basis.
- Increased engagement with the management of ministries but also with other staff responsible for developing consultations to increase their understanding of the importance of implementing minimum quality standards for public consultations.
- Avoiding technical flaws in the platform and adding new modules to generate information.
- Continuing activities for capacity building of ministries and provide information on public consultation system and rules.
